

IT Security Seminar 13

Student version

Prof. Leonardo Mostarda,
School Science and Technology,
Camerino University, London
Version 2.0, Mar 2015

Question 1

Discuss and define the ISAKMP/Oakley protocol.

Question 2

Oakley is based on Diffie-Hellman. This is subject to a man-in-the-middle attack and It is computationally intensive. As a result, it is vulnerable to a clogging attack. Provide a detailed description of the clogging attack. How does the Oakley protocol overcome the aforementioned limitations?

Question 3

Describe the cookie exchange process of the Oakley protocol.

Question 4

What are the authentication method used by Oakley? Discuss them.